(1)

Supreme Court, U.S.
FILED

961747 MAY 1 1997

OFFICE OF THE CLERK

No.

In The
Supreme Court of the United States
October Term 1996

Hyok S. Lew,
Pro se Petitioner
v.

Rosemount, Inc.

On Petition For Writ Of Certiorari
To The U.S. Court of Appeals For The Federal Circuit

PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI

Hyok S. Lew
7890 Oak Street
Arvada, CO 80005
Tel.: (303) 420-2784

Pro se Petitioner

---

31 pp

The presiding U.S. District Court judge and magistrate took a position totally hostile and prejudicial against the petitioner, who believes that the judge's and magistrate's hostile and prejudiced attitude and position originate from their racial prejudice and hostility directed towards the petitioner, whom the magistrate had openly classified as "not a native born American or English speaking person". The openly racially prejudiced magistrate had fabricated six (6) different false grounds allegedly warranting the dismissal of the lawsuit with prejudice and recommended to the judge to dismiss the lawsuit with prejudice. The judge blindly accepted the magistrate's fallacious recommendation and dismissed the lawsuit with prejudice without reviewing any one of numerous subject matters pertinent to the frauds and misrepresentations committed by the counsels for defendant in providing materials which were used to fabricate the fallacious recommendation of the magistrate. The judge threatened the petitioner that he will order the petitioner to pay the defendant's attorney fees if the petitioner would file any more motions requesting to address the frauds and misrepresentations committed by the counsels for defendant.

Firstly, isn't it unconstitutional to discriminate against the plaintiff because the plaintiff is "not a native born American or English speaking person" in magistrate's opinion; to dismiss the lawsuit with prejudice solely on the fabricated fallacious ground; and to infringe the plaintiff's right to speak out on matters of the lawsuit by intimidation put up by the judge?

Secondly, isn't it injustice that the U.S. Court of Appeals upheld the dismissal of the lawsuit by the U.S. District Court's judge and magistrate without OPINION, in spite of the overwhelming evidence supporting the judge's and magistrate's grossly inequitable and discriminating treatment of the petitioner and their unjust acts solely based on the frauds and misrepresentations?

PARTIES TO PROCEEDING

Civil Action No. 95-B-200 in the U.S. District Court for the District of Colorado.

Appeal Docket No. 97-1030 in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

Hyok S. Lew
Plaintiff-Appellant,

v.

Rosemount, Inc.,
Defendant-Appellee.

Hyok S. Lew, The Pro se Petitioner
7890 Oak Street
Arvada, Colorado 80005
Tel.: (303) 420-2784
The Plaintiff

Rosemount, Inc.,
12001 Technology Drive
Eden Prairie, Minnesota 55344
Tel.: (612) 941-5560
The Defendant

Jesse J. Jenner
Denise L. Loring
Jeanne C. Curtis
FISH & NEAVE
1251 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10020
Tel.: (212) 596-9000
The Counsels for Defendant

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Questions presented for Review ---------- i

Parties to Proceeding ---------- ii

Table of Contents ---------- iii

Table of Authorities ---------- iv

Opinion and Jurisdiction ---------- 1

Text of Petition

I. Events pertinent to Petition ---------- 2
II. Issues pertinent to Petition ---------- 6
III. Conclusion of Petition ---------- 9

APPENDIX

A. Defendant's pleading inadvertantly admitting Falsification of Verbal Discovery Order in the process of entering thereof------- A1
B. Plaintiff's Motion requesting the Court to address the Falsification of the Verbal Discovery Order by the defense counsel ----- A3
C. U.S. District Judge's Order regarding the Falsification of the Verbal Discovery Order by the defense counsel ---------- A6
D. Defendant's Pleading affirming Racially Prejudiced Statement made by the Magistrate of the U.S. District Court ---------- A7
E. U.S. District Judge's Order dismissing the lawsuit based on Fabricated Fallacious Ground ---------- A10
F. U.S. District Judge's Order denying Plaintiff's Motion for New Trial ---------- A13
G. Judgment of Affirmance without Opinion by the U.S. Court of Appeals ---------- A14

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

First Authority: Just Verdict cannot be based on the fabricated fallacious ground totally void of any factual basis and is corroborated to be false and fraudulent overwhelmingly by the documented evidence. The dismissal of the lawsuit with prejudice ordered by the U.S. district judge is an unjust verdict issued solely based on the fabricated fallacious ground, of which fallacy and duplicity are overwhelmingly supported by numerous documented evidences presented by the petitioner before the U.S. District Court and before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

Second Authority: Just verdict cannot be issued by the extremely hostile and prejudiced U.S. district judge, who supported and accepted the false and duplicitous opinions and recommendations from the racially prejudiced magistrate of the U.S. District Court, who identified the petitioner as "not a native born American or English speaking person". The dismissal of lawsuit is manifested by the vindictive and racially prejudiced state of minds of the district judge and magistrate of the U.S. District Court.

Third Authority: The Judgment of Affirmance without Opinion by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit seems to have ignored and disregarded the overwhelming documented evidences presented therebefore by the petitioner. A fair and just review of the dismissal of lawsuit with prejudice by the U.S. District Court is not possible, when the documented evidences corroborating the fallacy and duplicity of the grounds relied on the U.S. District Court in dismissing the lawsuit with prejudice had been ignored and disregarded by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit in affirming the U.S. district judge's ruling without OPINION.

Your petitioner Hyok S. Lew respectfully petitions for a writ of certiorari to review the judgment of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit in this case.

OPINION OF THE U.S. COURT OF APPEALS

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit did not issue any opinion in affirming the dismissal of lawsuit with prejudice, as the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit's verdict was Judgment of Affirmance Without Opinion.

JURISDICTION

The judgment of affirmance without opinion of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit was entered on February 10, 1997.

TEXT OF PETITION

I. Events pertinent to Petition:

This petition is related to a civil action of patent infringement wherein the petitioner is the plaintiff, who had filed a complaint against the defendant for infringing a U.S. patent owned by the petitioner in the U.S. District Court for the District of Colorado. During the settlement-status conference, the magistrate of the U.S. District Court issued a certain discovery order verbally without installing any means for recording the statements made by the magistrate and the parties attending the settlement-status conference. In the subsequent process of entering the magistrate's verbal discovery order, the counsels for defendant falsified the context of the verbal discovery order in the manner that provides unjustified advantage to the defendant. The defense counsel inadvertantly admitted the falsification of the magistrate's verbal discovery order in the process of entering thereof in a defendant's pleading after initially denying the falsification repeatedly (ref. To Appendix A showing the lame excuse put up by the counsels for defendant).

The petitioner's ex-counsel filed a plaintiff's motion requesting the court to address the matter of falsification of the magistrate's verbal discovery order by the defense counsel and to hold a hearing to file a fraud or criminal charge against the defense counsel of the falsification of the verbal discovery order (ref. to Appendix B). Soon thereafter, the petitioner's counsel resigned voluntarily, and the petitioner was forced to prosecute the lawsuit as the pro se plaintiff. The U.S. district judge's ruling on the above-mentioned plaintiff's motion was a duplicitous legal maneuver, wherein he upheld the falsified version of the magistrate's verbal discovery order while holding the addressing of the issue of the falsification of the magistrate's verbal discovery order and the granting of the hearing to file the fraud or criminal charge against the defense counsel in "abeyance" indefinitely (ref. to Appendix C). The defense counsel's argument that the magistrate has the discretionary authority or power to sign and enter the falsified version of his verbal discovery order falsified by the defense counsel, amounts to nothing more than a lame excuse to justify the defense counsel's fraudulent or criminal act of falsifying the magistrate's verbal discovery order, for it was the defense counsel rather than the magistrate, who had altered the context of the verbal discovery order in the process of entering thereof, and it is an ultimately unethical act even for the magistrate to sign and enter the falsified verbal discovery order of his own. It is an absolutely unjust and erroneous ruling that the U.S. district judge upheld the falsified discovery order under the guise that the issue of falsification of the discovery order will be addressed at another time, which ruling is comparable to sentencing first and have trial later. The U.S. district judge had never addressed the issue of falsification of the discovery order for the next eight (8) months until he dismissed the lawsuit with prejudice based solely on six (6) different fallacious grounds fabricated by the magistrate of the U.S. District Court.

In the afore-mentioned plaintiff's motion requesting the court to address the issue of falsification of the discovery order and grant a hearing to file the fraud or criminal charge against the defense counsel, the plaintiff's ex-counsel also raised issue that the magistrate of the U.S. District Court had signed and entered the falsified version of his verbal discovery order with implicit knowledge of the falsification (ref. to Appendix B), which statement of the plaintiff's ex-counsel implied that the magistrate had at least condoned or more likely aided and abetted the falsification of the discovery order by the defense counsel. Apparently, the judge and the magistrate of the U.S. District Court were incensed, because the plaintiff had raised issues which were considered by them as a direct challenge to the authority of the U.S. District Court and an insult to the district judge and the magistrate, particularly in view that such challenge and accusations were made by the plaintiff, who is "not a native born American or English speaking person" according to the magistrate's classification of the plaintiff, against the very proud class of American citizens, i.e., the judicial officers and the practicing lawyers.

The magistrate of the U.S. District Court expressed his anger by accusing the plaintiff in an openly racial tune:

> "Dr. Lew, I think that you are making serious, serious mistake by trying to do this yourself. You are not a native born American or English speaking person, and do not understand English well enough to really understand what is going on. Your speaking of English is not so good that people can understand one hundred percent what you say. You try to do this case without lawyers, without experts and without the ability to have some body communicating for you. I think it is terribly, terribly foolish decision on your part."

On the first impression, the above-described statement of the magistrate of the U.S. District Court sounds like a constructive advice or suggestion to the plaintiff. But the tune of the statement including the offensive phrases such as "serious, serious mistake"; "not a native born American or English speaking person"; and "terribly, terribly foolish decision" clearly indicates that the statement is an accusation and racial put-down made by the magistrate in order to vent his anger. As a matter of fact, it is hard to believe that if any respectable judicial officer or officers would actually make such racially prejudicial statement accusing and racially putting-down the plaintiff in front of the entire troupe of the defense counsel. The defendant's pleading filed with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, that is attached as Appendix D, affirms that the magistrate had actually made the racially prejudicial statement (ref. to Appendix D).

It is self-evident from the afore-mentioned attitudes of the judge and the magistrate of the U.S. District Court, i.e., the district judge's duplicitous ruling of upholding the falsified discovery order rigged by the defense counsel while holding the addressing of the issue of the falsification of the discovery order in abeyance indefinitely, and the magistrate's signing and entering of the falsified discovery order with implicit knowledge of the falsification thereof and his accusation in the racially prejudiced tone directed against the plaintiff, that the district judge and the magistrate had lost the neutrality in their mentality and started to treat the plaintiff as their adversary rather than one of the two equal parties in the lawsuit.

The plaintiff filed a motion requesting to vacate the erroneous ruling by the U.S. district judge on the previous plaintiff's motion, in which ruling the district judge had upheld the falsified discovery order while holding addressing of the issue of the falsification of the discovery order in abeyance indefinitely. The district judge had never made any ruling on this motion of the plaintiff. The plaintiff filed a motion requesting the removal of the magistrate on the ground that the magistrate is a close friend of one of the counsels for defendant and had taken hostile and prejudiced position against the plaintiff. The district judge also ignored and avoided to make any ruling on this motion of the plaintiff. As a matter of fact, the U.S. district judge had systematically ignored and willfully avoided to make any rulings on all of the plaintiff's motions filed thereafter numbering at least twenty (20).

The racially prejudiced magistrate of the U.S. District Court, who had accused the plaintiff for "not a native born American or English speaking person", had fabricated six (6) different fallacious grounds allegedly warranting the dismissal of the lawsuit, which fallacious grounds the magistrate had put together solely based on the fraudulent and misrepresenting information supplied by the defense counsel. Apparently, the defense counsel's strategy in the lawsuit was to commit indiscriminate frauds and misrepresentations in order to take advantage of the plaintiff's inexperience in litigation, and to utilize the magistrate of the U.S. District Court who condones and abets the fraudulent and misrepresenting acts of the defense counsel.

The U.S. district judge had blindly accepted the magistrate's fallacious recommendation and dismissed the lawsuit with prejudice. While the U.S. district judge claimed:

> "My de novo review of the record in this case reflects that the magistrate judge's comprehensive and thorough recommendation is clearly supported by the record.", the district judge did not actually address any of the improper, unethical, and criminal conducts on the part of defense counsel and the magistrate, which conducts had been corroborated by the documented evidences presented before the U.S. District Court by the plaintiff. In order to prevent the plaintiff from speaking out further on the events pertinent to the proceedings of the lawsuit and on the unsavory matters related to the improper and unethical conducts of the U.S. district judge and the magistrate, and the defense counsel, the U.S. district judge threatened the petitioner:

> "Any further abuse of the judicial process by the plaintiff as has been repeatedly demonstrated throughout the course of this action while appearing pro se shall subject the plaintiff to further sanctions, including but not limited to, additional costs and/or attorney fees incurred as a result, and the entry of an order barring plaintiff from filing any pleadings in a pro se capacity rather than through an attorney of record appearing on his behalf."

(ref. to the last paragraph appearing in Appendix E).

II. Issues under Petition:

1. The petitioner believes that it is unconstitutional to discriminate and mistreat the plaintiff in the lawsuit by the U.S. district judge and the magistrate to such an extreme degree exemplified by:

(a) the magistrate had condoned and abetted the falsification of the verbal discovery order by the defense counsel in the process of entering thereof, while the magistrate was aware of the falsification of the verbal discovery order in advance prior to the entering thereof;

(b) the district judge covered up the crime of falsifying the verbal discovery order by the defense counsel by upholding the falsified discovery order and holding in abeyance indefinitely the plaintiff's motion requesting the court to address the falsification of the verbal discovery order and holding a hearing to file a criminal charge against the defense counsel of the falsification of the verbal discovery order; and

(c) the magistrate had encouraged the defense counsel to commit frauds and misrepresentations by suggesting that the defense counsel will receive preferential treatment by showing his hostility and prejudiced attitude towards the plaintiff, who called the plaintiff

> "not a native born American or English speaking person (who made) terribly, terribly foolish decision."

2. The petitioner believes that it is unconstitutional to deprive the petitioner of his civil right to receive a fair trial as a tax-paying U.S. citizen, even though he is not a "native born American or English speaking person" according to the magistrate's classification of the plaintiff. The judge and magistrate of the U.S. District Court had infringed the petitioner's civil right entitling him to receive a fair trial by acting unethically and inequitably:

(a) The judge and the magistrate of the U.S. District Court condoned and abetted the frauds and misrepresentations perpetrated in the lawsuit by the defense counsel, and thus helped the defendant to take illegal advantage and imposed unlawful handicap to the plaintiff: and

(b) The magistrate had fabricated six (6) different fallacious grounds allegedly warranting the dismissal of the lawsuit with prejudice and recommended the dismissal of the lawsuit with prejudice to the district judge. The judge had blindly accepted the magistrate's recommendation and dismissed the lawsuit with prejudice solely based on the fallacious grounds fabricated by the magistrate. In so doing, the judge ignored and disregarded numerous documented evidences corroborating the fallacy and the fraudulent nature of the grounds allegedly warranting the dismissal of the lawsuit with prejudice, which documented evidences were presented before the U.S. district judge by the plaintiff.

3. The petitioner believes that it is unconstitutional to deprive the plaintiff of his civil right to speak out on the events pertinent to matters related to the lawsuit. The U.S. district judge infringed the plaintiff's civil right entitling him to speak out in order to protect his interest in the lawsuit by threatening that the district judge will order the plaintiff to pay the defendant's attorney fees, if the plaintiff speaks out further and again raise the issue of the unethical acts committed by the district judge and the magistrate, and the criminal and fraudulent acts perpetrated by the defense counsel.

4. The petitioner believes that it is unconstitutional to deny the due process to the plaintiff, that the plaintiff entitles as his civil rights. The U.S. district judge had systematically and willfully ignored and refused to make any rulings on all of the plaintiff's motions numbering at least twenty (20), which attitude and act of the district judge made the prosecution of the lawsuit absolutely impossible for the plaintiff.

5. The petitioner believes that he did not receive a fair review of his appeal and did not receive justice from the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. The plaintiff had presented the issue in a great detail and submitted extensive documented evidences supporting the merits of those issues before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit issued Judgment of Affirmance without Opinion. In the petitioner's opinion, there is definite possibility that his case might have been swept under the rug by the preoccupied appellate judges without examining the extensive documented evidences and without reviewing the arguments filed with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit by the plaintiff.

III. Conclusion of Petition:

The petitioner has devoted the past twenty five years of his life to inventing, and obtained two hundred twenty five U.S. patents. In the early years of his inventive career, the petitioner had a youthful ideal of contributing to the well being of all human kinds by inventing things which make lives of many unprivileged people less burdening and toiling. Such youthful ideal has long gone and the petitioner keeps inventing to support his family and stay alive for himself. It has been a sheer up hill struggle for the petitioner, who had to do everything required to invent and obtain patents all by himself from writing patent applications to drafting patent drawings. Through many challenges and repeating disappointments in life, the petitioner has learned a long time ago that this world is not a very nice place to live for many under-privileged folks including the petitioner. It was the last things which the petitioner expected that certain practicing lawyers do not hesitate to commit crime to win a lawsuit by means of fraud and misrepresentation, and certain judge and magistrate dismiss a lawsuit with prejudice solely based on fallacious grounds.

The petitioner hereby petitions the United States Supreme Court to review the five issues presented in the foregoing Issues under Petition. The petitioner prays that the United States Supreme Court grants review of this case.

Date: April 28, 1997 Respectfully submitted,

By: Hyok Sang Lew

Hyok S. Lew
7890 Oak Street
Arvada, Colorado 80005
Tel.: (303) 420-2784

Pro se Petitioner

APPENDIX A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO

Civil Action No. 95-B-200

HYOK S. LEW
An individual,
Plaintiff,

v.

ROSEMOUNT, INC.,
A Minnesota corporation,
Defendant.

ROSEMOUNT, INC.'S MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO LEW'S PETITION ASKING THE WITHDRAWAL OF MAGISTRATE JUDGE

Lew's petition seeking the withdrawal of Magistrate Judge O. Edward Schlatter is baseless. The orders entered by Magistrate Judge Schlatter and complained of by Lew are well within the scope of his discretion and Lew has not shown them to be clearly erroneous or contrary to law. Rule 72(a), F.R.C.P.

Lew's assertion that Magistrate Judge Schlatter has "adopt(ed) an inappropriately friendly relationship with the defense counsels --------- (and) has taken an openly hostile and prejudiced attitude towards the Plaintiff Lew" (Lew Petition, p. 1) is without any foundation. In the same vein, Lew's indictment of Magistrate Judge Schlatter as aiding and abetting criminal activities (Lew Petition, p. 2) is a scandalous charge without any justification.

Rosemount is mindful that Lew now appears pro se and that much of his difficulty (and consequently his wild charges) most likely stem from Lew's lack of understanding of the judicial process. It is only for these reasons that Rosemount has not sought sanctions. Nevertheless, Lew's attack on the Magistrate Judge is wholly unwarranted and inappropriate.

Lew's petition should be denied.

Dated: November 30, 1995

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ William E. Murane
William E. Murane
Michael Noone
HOLLAND & HART
Suite 3200
555 Seventeenth Street
Denver, Colorado 80202
(303) 295-8000
D.C. Box 06

Jesse J. Jenner
Denise L. Loring
John C. Vetter
FISH & NEAVE
1251 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10020
(212) 596-9000

APPENDIX B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO

Civil Action No. 95-B-200

HYOK S. LEW
An individual,
Plaintiff,

v.

ROSEMOUNT, INC.,
A Minnesota corporation,
Defendant.

LEW'S MOTION TO RECONSIDER MAGISTRATE'S ORDER OF JULY 24, 1995 AND THE PROTECTIVE ORDER ENTERED ON JULY 24, 1995, AND LEW'S MOTION FOR HOLDING HEARING TO FILE CHARGE AGAINST DEFENDANT'S COUNSEL OR COUNSELS OF FALSIFYING CONTENTS OF ORDER MADE BY MAGISTRATE JUDGE ON JULY 11, 1995 AND TO ARGUE THE ENTRY OF THE PROTECTIVE ORDER

Pursuant to Rule 72(a), Fed.R.Civ.P., Plaintiff Lew objects certain portions of the Magistrate 's order of July 24, 1995. First, Plaintiff raises several objections to discovery related issues. Essentially, the Magistrate signed an order drafted by Defendant's counsel which, although was supposed to reflect the ruling made by the Magistrate on July 11, 1995, in actuality misrepresents the Magistrate's ruling and places significant discovery burdens on Lew since he is now by Order required to produce highly proprietary information which has no bearing on this lawsuit.

In the process of executing the Defendant's draft order, the Magistrate failed to follow Rule 11. Dr. Lew submitted a pleading pro se, which was not signed by counsel, objecting to the proposed order drafted by Defendant's counsel. *1 Rule 11 appear to place a burden on the Court to notify the party of failure to place an attorney's signature on a pleading: "An unsigned paper shall be stricken unless omission of the signature is corrected promptly after being called to the attention of the attorney or party." Instead of notifying Plaintiff or Plaintiff's counsel directly, the Magistrate informed Defendant's counsel ex parte of his intention to strike the pleading and never informed plaintiff or plaintiff's counsel until he signed Defendant's draft order. Because he struck Lew's pleading without giving him a chance to submit a pleading with counsel's signature, the Magistrate was without the benefit of Lew's argument when he entered the Order.

In addition, the Magistrate failed to follow the Federal Rules and decide discovery issues raised impromptu by Defendant's counsel during a Settlement Conference. By deciding discovery issues extemporaneously, counsel did not have the opportunity to consult pursuant to Rule 37(a)(2)(B) and motion to compel was not filed pursuant to Rule 37. The failure to adhere to these lack of a crystallized presentation to the Magistrate of the controverted discovery issues are an injustice to Dr. Lew.

---

*1 The pleading, which has been attached as Exhibit A, accuses Defendant's counsel of willfully falsifying the Magistrate's oral rulings which Lew himself believes is tantamount to felonious conduct. The exhibits to that pleading are incorporated herein by reference. Despite having received notice of this conduct, the Magistrate signed Defendant's draft order with implicit knowledge of the inaccuracies.

I. OBJECTION TO THE DISCOVERY ORDER

The following sets forth Dr. Lew's objections to the discovery order. This material was drafted by Dr. Lew himself. Much of the following was contained in the stricken pleading drafted by Lew.

Plaintiff Hyok S. Lew ("Lew") is hereby objecting to the Magistrate's Order of July 24, 1995 which purports to confirm rulings made by the Magistrate Judge on July 11, 1995; Lew is hereby accusing Defendant's counsel or counsels for willfully falsifying the Order made by the Magistrate Judge on July 11, 1995; and Lew is hereby filing a motion to move the Court to hold a hearing whereby Lew files charges against Defendant's counsel or counsels of willfully falsifying the Order made by the Magistrate Judge on July 11, 1995.

DATED: July 28, 1995

Respectfully submitted,

SHERIDAN ROSS & McINTOSH, P. C.

By: /s/ George G. Matava
David F. Zinger
George G. Matava
Robert R. Brunelli
1700 Lincoln Street
Suite 3500
Denver, Colorado 80203
(303) 863-9700

Attorney for Plaintiff

APPENDIX C

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO
LEWIS T. BABCOCK, JUDGE

Civil Case No. 95-B-200

HYOK S. LEW, an individual,
Plaintiff,

v.

ROSEMOUNT, INC., a Minnesota corporation,
Defendant

ORDER

This case is before me on plaintiff's motion for clarification of my order of August 15, 1995, reviewing certain determinations by the magistrate judge. Being duly advised, IT IS ORDERED that the motion is GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN PART.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the order of August 15, 1995, finding the magistrate judge's determinations to be neither clearly erroneous nor contrary to law applies to the magistrate judge's nondispositive discovery rulings.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the August 15, 1995 order does not address plaintiff's various charges against counsels appearing in this case concerning falsification of documents or violation of attorney/client privilege, which matters are held in abeyance.

BY THE COURT:

DATED: August 21, 1995 /s/ Lewis T. Babcock
Lewis T. Babcock, Judge

APPENDIX D

BRIEF FOR DEFENDANT-APPELLEE
ROSEMOUNT, INC.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT

Appeal No. 97-1030

HYOK S. LEW
Plaintiff-Appellant,

v.

ROSEMOUNT, INC.,
Defendant-Appellee.

APPEAL FROM AN ORDER OF THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO IN 96-1223 & 96-1257 ENTERED APRIL 18, 1996 JUDGE LEWIS T. BABCOCK

December 16, 1996

OF COUNSEL:

Denise L. Loring
Jeanne C. Curtis
FISH & NEAVE
1251 Avenue of
the Americas
New York, New York
10020
(212) 596-9000

Jesse J. Jenner
FISH & NEAVE
1251 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10020
(212) 596-9000

Counsel for Defendant-Appellee
Rosemount, Inc.

William E. Murane
HOLLAND & HART
555 17th Street, Suite 3200
Denver, Colorado 80202
(303) 295-8000

When the Magistrate Judge's advice is read in context, it is plain that the Magistrate Judge was trying to help, not harm, appellant (A268):

> "Dr. Lew, I think that you are making a serious, serious mistake by trying to do this yourself. You are not a native born American or English speaking person and you do not understand the law in America. You do not understand English well enough to really understand what is going on. Your speaking in English is not so good that people can understand one hundred percent what you say. You try to do this case without lawyers, without experts and without the ability to have somebody communicating for you. I think it is a terribly, terribly foolish decision on your part. You don't understand the nature of the way legal proceedings work and it is hurting you and your case. I urge you to get a lawyer and I urge you to listen to the lawyer because the lawyer will tell you that you need to have expert witness in order to do, really, a case like this"

Respectfully submitted,

Date: December 16, 1996

/s/ Jesse J. Jenner

Jesse J. Jenner
FISH & NEAVE
1251 Avenue of
the Americas
New York, New York 10020
Telephone: (212) 596-9000

Counsel for
Defendant -Appellee
Rosemount, Inc.

OF COUNSEL:

Denise L. Loring
Jeanne C. Curtis
FISH & NEAVE
1251 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10020
Telephone: (212) 596-9000

William E. Murane
HOLLAND & HART
Suite 3200
555 Seventeenth Street
Denver, Colorado 80202-3979
(303) 295-8000

APPENDIX E

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO
LEWIS T. BABCOCK, JUDGE

Civil Case No. 95-B-200

HYOK S. LEW, an individual,
Plaintiff,

v.

ROSEMOUNT, INC., a Minnesota corporation,
Defendant.

ORDER

This case is before me upon the following: (1) Magistrate Judge O. Edward Schlatter's March 11, 1996 recommendation that this action be dismissed with prejudice; (2) defendant's motion to dismiss upon basis stated by the magistrate judge in his recommendation; (3) plaintiff's objection to the magistrate judge's recommendation; (4) "Plaintiff's Response Objecting to Rosemount, Inc.'s Motion To Dismiss, Plaintiff's Motion Requesting Voluntary Withdrawal of Magistrate O. Edward Schlatter From The Lawsuit, And Plaintiff's Motion To Sanction Defendant For Harassing Plaintiff By Means Of Criminal Acts"; (5) Defendant's opposition to motion to stay the order of March 1, 1996 and motion to strike; and (6) "Plaintiff's Objection To Rosemount's Motion To Strike Lew's Motion To Stay The Order Of March 1, 1996 And Plaintiff's Motion To Have Hearing And To Report Crimes Committed By Defendant And Its Counsels To The Criminal Division Of U.S. Attorney's Office And The Office of FBI."

The magistrate judge has recommended dismissal of this action for plaintiff's refusal to cooperate in discovery. He cites as examples, plaintiff's refusal to appear at his deposition, plaintiff's refusal to agree to an English translation of a prior art Japanese patent, the content of which contains all the revisions that plaintiff previously requested, plaintiff's obstruction of service of subpoena upon a third party, and continued inclusion of scandalous and impertinent matter in papers filed with the court despite explicit warnings that plaintiff refrain from such conduct. The magistrate judge found in his recommendation that plaintiff's conduct caused to suffer unnecessary expense, delay and constituted abuse beyond the limits any litigant should be expected to bear.

I have reviewed the magistrate judge's recommendation do novo. My de novo review of the record in this case reflects that the magistrate judge's comprehensive and thorough recommendation is clearly supported by the record. Indeed, the prolix pleadings filed by the plaintiff following the issuance of the magistrate judge's recommendation are replete with continued scandalous and impertinent matter wholly beyond the bounds of any reasonable judicial tolerance. I conclude from my review of the record that plaintiff's continuous obstreperous and impertinent conduct constitutes unconscionable abuse of the judicial process which requires no less than the sanction of dismissal of this action with prejudice. I further conclude that plaintiff's allegations of improper, unethical, and criminal conduct on the part of defense counsel and the magistrate judge are baseless. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that the recommendation of the magistrate judge is approved, defendant's motion to dismiss is GRANTED, and the above action is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that "plaintiff's Objection to Rosemount's Motion To Strike Lew's Motion To Stay The Order Of March 1, 1996 And Plaintiff's Motion To Have Hearing And To Report Crimes Committed By Defendant

And Its Counsels To The Criminal Division Of U.S. Attorney's Office And The Office of FBI" is stricken as scandalous and impertinent.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff's motion for withdrawal of the magistrate judge is DENIED.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the remaining pending motions are DENIED as moot.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the defendant shall have its cost in this action.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that any further abuse of the judicial process by the plaintiff as has been repeatedly demonstrated throughout the course of this action while appearing pro se shall subject the plaintiff to further sanctions, including but not limited to, additional costs and/or attorney fees incurred as result, and the entry of an order barring plaintiff from filing any pleadings in a pro se capacity rather than through an attorney of record appearing on his behalf.

BY THE COURT:

DATED: April 17, 1996

/s/ Lewis T. Babcock
Lewis T. Babcock, Judge

APPENDIX F

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO
LEWIS T. BABCOCK, JUDGE

Civil Case No. 95-B-200

HYOK S. LEW, an individual,
Plaintiff,

v.

ROSEMOUNT, INC., a Minnesota corporation,
Defendant.

ORDER

Upon "Plaintiff's Motion To Have New Trial On The Ground That The Lawsuit Dismissed With Prejudice By The April 17, 1996 Order of Judge Lewis T. Babcock Had Erroneous Ruling Made By The Judge, Racially Prejudiced Statement Made By The Magistrate, And Fraud And Misrepresentation By Defense Counsel".

IT IS ORDERED that the motion for new trial is DENIED.

BY THE COURT:

Dated: May 2, 1996

/s/ Lewis T. Babcock
Lewis T. Babcock, Judge

APPENDIX G

NOTE: Pursuant to Fed. Cir. R. 47.6, this disposition is not citable as precedent. It is a public record. The disposition will appear in tables published periodically.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT

97-1030

HYOK S. LEW
Plaintiff-Appellant,

v.

ROSEMOUNT, INC.,
Defendant-Appellee.

Judgment

ON APPEAL from the UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO

In CASE NO(S). 96-1223 & 96-1257

This CAUSE having been heard and considered, it is ORDERED and ADJUDGED:

Per Curiam: (MAYER, PLAGER, and RADER, Circuit Judges):

AFFIRMED. See Fed. Cir. R. 36.

ENTERED BY ORDER OF THE COURT

DATED FEB 10 1997

/s/ Jan Horbaly
Jan Horbaly, Clerk

NOTICE TO PRO SE APPELLANTS AND PETITIONERS

The court has acted on your appeal or petition for review. The relief you sought from the court was denied. The accompanying judgment disposes of your appeal. It is a judgment of affirmance without opinion entered under Federal Circuit Rule 36, which states:

Rule 36. Entry of Judgment

Judgment of affirmance without opinion.-- The court may enter a judgment of affirmance without opinion, citing this rule, when it determines that any of the following circumstances exist:

(a) the judgment, decision or order of the trial court appealed from is based on findings that are not clearly erroneous;

(b) the evidence in support of a jury verdict is sufficient;

(c) summary judgment, direct verdict, or judgment on the pleading is supported by the record;

(d) the decision of an administrative agency warrants affirmance under the standard of review in the statute authorizing the petition for review; or

(e) a judgment or decision has been entered without an error of law;

and an opinion would have no precedential value.

Consequently, no opinion of the court was filed in this appeal by the panel of judges that decided the appeal. Inquiries to the court seeking further explanation of the court's decision cannot be honored as the deliberations of the panels of the court in particular appeals are not recorded.

This is a final judgment of the court. No further judicial review is available as a matter of right. The Supreme Court of the United States may review the judgments of this court by granting a petition for writ of certiorari; however, a review on writ of certiorari is not a matter of right, but of judicial discretion, only when there are special and important reasons therefor.

No. 96-1747

Supreme Court, U.S.
FILED
JUN 2 1997
CLERK

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1996

HYOK S. LEW,

Pro Se Petitioner,

—v.—

ROSEMOUNT, INC.,

Respondent.

ON PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT

BRIEF IN OPPOSITION TO PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI

JESSE J. JENNER
(Counsel of Record)
DENISE L. LORING
JEANNE C. CURTIS
FISH & NEAVE
1251 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10020
(212) 596-9000

WILLIAM E. MURANE
HOLLAND & HART
555 Seventeenth Street,
Suite 2700
Denver, Colorado 80202
(303) 295-8000

June 2, 1997

Counsel for Respondent

QUESTIONS PRESENTED FOR REVIEW

Respondent does not believe that there are any issues properly before this Court. However, if certiorari were granted, the questions for review should be as follows:

1. Has the petitioner identified a cognizable question for review by this Court on a writ of certiorari?

2. Is it within the province of the Court of Appeals to issue a judgment of affirmance without an opinion?

STATEMENT PURSUANT TO SUPREME COURT RULE 29.6

Rosemount Inc. ("Rosemount") is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Emerson Electric Co.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

QUESTIONS PRESENTED FOR REVIEW i

STATEMENT PURSUANT TO SUPREME COURT RULE 29.6 ii

TABLE OF CONTENTS iii

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES iv

STATEMENT OF THE CASE 1

REASONS FOR DENYING THE PETITION 2

I. Petitioner Has Failed To Identify Any Question Subject To Review By This Court On A Writ Of Certiorari 2

A. This Court's Standards For Consideration On A Writ Of Certiorari Are Not Met Here 3

B. The District's Court Dismissal Of This Action Was An Appropriate Sanction For Petitioner's Refusal To Cooperate In Discovery 4

II. The Court of Appeals Has The Authority To Enter A Judgment Of Affirmance Without An Opinion 6

CONCLUSION 8

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

CASES

Page

Appalachian Power Co. v. American Inst. of Certified Pub. Accountants, 80 S. Ct. 16 (1959) 3

Braxton v. United States, 500 U.S. 344 (1991) 3

Ehrenhaus v. Reynolds, 965 F.2d 916 (10th Cir. 1992) 4,5

Furman v. United States, 720 F.2d 263 (2d Cir. 1983) 7

Kearns v. General Motors Corp., No. 85-70461 (E.D. Mich. July 27, 1993), aff'd without op., 31 F.3d 1178 (Fed. Cir. 1994), cert. denied, 115 S. Ct. 1105 (1995) 4

Link v. Wabash R.R. Co., 370 U.S. 626 (1962) 4

Mobley v. McCormick, 160 F.R.D. 599 (D. Colo.), aff'd without op., 69 F.3d 548 (10th Cir. 1995) 4,5

National Hockey League v. Metropolitan Hockey Club, 427 U.S. 639 (1976). 4

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES (con't)

Taylor v. McKeithen,
407 U.S. 191 (1972) 6

United States v. Baynes,
548 F.2d 481 (3d Cir. 1977) 7

United States Surgical Corp. v. Ethicon, Inc.,
103 F.3d 1554 (Fed. Cir. 1997) 7

RULES

Sup. Ct. R. 10 3

Fed. R. App. P. 36 7

Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(C) 4

Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(b) 4

Fed. Cir. R. 36 7

D.C. Cir. R. 36 7

1st Cir. R. 36.1 7

2d Cir. R. 0.23 7

5th Cir. R. 47.6 7

6th Cir. R. 19 7

8th Cir. R. 47B 7

9th Cir. R. 36-1 7

10th Cir. R. 36.1 7

11th Cir. R. 36-1 7

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Hyok S. Lew's ("Lew's") brief in support of his petition provides no legitimate reason why this Court should exercise its discretion and review the decisions below.

The District Court's dismissal of this patent infringement action was not the result, as petitioner contends (Petition 3-7), of any alleged "unfairness" or "racial bias." To the contrary, the District Court dismissed this action because of petitioner's obstreperous conduct throughout the proceedings, including his repeated refusals to comply with Court Orders despite warnings from the District Court that such refusal would result in dismissal. (R.A.5-21.)[1] Petitioner's behavior before the District Court constituted nothing less than an "unconscionable abuse of the judicial process." (R.A.6.)

The record is replete with examples of petitioner's abuse of the judicial process. The following, which the District Court recognized and relied on in dismissing the action, are illustrative (R.A.5-21):

- Petitioner "firmly and unalterably" refused to appear for his deposition, despite warnings that such refusal was grounds for dismissal.
- Petitioner obstructed Rosemount's efforts to serve a subpoena on a family-run corporation, despite the fact that petitioner's wife and two adult sons, all of whom are principals, live at his residence.
- Petitioner refused to accept a translation of an anticipating Japanese prior art reference as the official translation despite the incorporation of every one of petitioner's specific objections to such translation.

---

1 "R.A." refers to Respondent's Appendix.

- Petitioner insisted on hurling invective and accusations at defense counsel and the District Court, despite repeated warnings that his pleadings would be stricken if such behavior continued.

Prior to dismissal, the Magistrate Judge issued numerous warnings to petitioner, but to no avail. (R.A.9-21.) In accordance with controlling precedent, the Magistrate Judge recommended that the action be dismissed. (R.A.9-21.) The District Court accepted this recommendation (R.A.5-8) and the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit affirmed (R.A.1-4).

Petitioner's accusations of "racial bias" (which he also raised with the Court of Appeals) are unfounded and cannot change these unalterable facts. Indeed, the supposed "racial bias" actually reflected an attempt by the District Court to steer petitioner away from difficulty. Petitioner's abuse and disregard for the judicial process more than justifies the dismissal of this action.

REASONS FOR DENYING THE PETITION

I. Petitioner Has Failed To Identify Any Question Subject To Review By This Court On A Writ Of Certiorari

Petitioner's brief fails to identify any issue warranting review by this Court of the decisions below. (See Petition 2-10.) This routine patent infringement suit was dismissed in accordance with well-established principles of civil procedure because of petitioner's misconduct throughout the proceedings in the District Court. (See R.A.5-21.)

Petitioner cannot overcome the routine nature of this action and the District Court's dismissal by hurling unfounded accusations of racial prejudice at the Magistrate Judge and the District Court. As explained infra, it was petitioner's own behavior during the course of this litigation, not any racial bias by the Magistrate Judge or the District Court, that led to dismissal of petitioner's action.

A. This Court's Standards For Consideration On A Writ Of Certiorari Are Not Met Here

Review by this Court on a writ of certiorari is not a matter of right, but rather is a matter of judicial discretion. Sup. Ct. R. 10. Such discretion is exercised in the presence of "compelling reasons." Id.

None of the traditional bases for review on a writ of certiorari is present here. Id.; see also Braxton v. United States, 500 U.S. 344, 347 (1991) (The primary reason for review by the Supreme Court on certiorari is to resolve conflicts among the courts of appeals and state courts concerning the meaning of provisions of federal law.); Appalachian Power Co. v. American Inst. of Certified Pub. Accountants, 80 S. Ct. 16, 17 (1959) (In the absence of divergent views among the federal appellate courts, the Supreme Court will not review a District Court's judgment that is based on the application of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and which has been affirmed by the Court of Appeals.). This case does not present an issue that has been decided inconsistently by the circuit courts of appeals. Id. This case also does not raise a question of unsettled federal law. Id. Nor do the decisions below evidence a "depart[ure] from the accepted and usual course of judicial proceedings." Id. To the contrary, this case presents nothing more than a last-ditch-effort by a defiant litigant to resurrect a case that was properly dismissed because of his deliberate failure to comply with Court Orders.

B. The District Court's Dismissal Of This Action Was An Appropriate Sanction For Petitioner's Refusal To Cooperate In Discovery

The District Court dismissed petitioner's action because of petitioner's repeated refusal to cooperate in discovery, including his refusal to comply with Court Orders and culminating in his refusal to submit to deposition. (R.A.5-21.) In so doing, the District Court relied upon well-settled principles of law. (R.A.5-21.)

As this Court has recognized, dismissal of an action with prejudice pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(C) is a sanction that is available to a district court for a party's violation of discovery deadlines and Orders. National Hockey League v. Metropolitan Hockey Club, 427 U.S. 639, 643 (1976) (plaintiff's noncompliance with a discovery Order warranted dismissal, particularly where plaintiff had been warned that such behavior could result in sanctions); Link v. Wabash R.R. Co., 370 U.S. 626, 629-30 (1962) ("The authority of a federal trial court to dismiss a plaintiff's action with prejudice because of his failure to prosecute cannot seriously be doubted."); see also Ehrenhaus v. Reynolds, 965 F.2d 916, 918-20 (10th Cir. 1992) (dismissal of an action is an appropriate sanction for a party's failure to permit or provide discovery); Mobley v. McCormick, 160 F.R.D. 599, 601-02 (D. Colo.) (dismissal was an appropriate sanction where plaintiff repeatedly and intentionally "flouted, disregarded and disobeyed the orders of this court, while simultaneously failing to offer any satisfactory justification for his actions"), aff'd without op., 69 F.3d 548 (10th Cir. 1995); Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(C), 41(b).

A litigant's pro se status is not a license for that litigant to ignore Court Rules and Orders. As noted by the Court in Kearns v. General Motors Corp., No. 85-70461, mem. op. at 9 (E.D. Mich. July 27, 1993), aff'd without op., 31 F.3d 1178 (Fed. Cir. 1994), cert. denied, 115 S. Ct. 1105 (1995):

> The civil justice system can absorb just so much abuse from a pro se litigant. Plaintiff clearly exceeded the limit of abuse and for that reason this case is no longer in court.

(footnote omitted).

Petitioner's conduct before the District Court is precisely the type of behavior that warrants dismissal.[2] (See R.A.5-21.) Petitioner repeatedly refused to comply with Court Orders. (R.A.6, 9-21.) Petitioner was fully capable of complying with these Orders, but simply chose not to. (R.A.12-21.) In addition, petitioner adamantly refused to appear for his deposition. (R.A.6, 9-16.)

The Magistrate Judge did all that was required before recommending that the District Court dismiss the action. See Ehrenhaus, 965 F.2d at 918-20; Mobley, 160 F.R.D. at 601-02. When petitioner insisted that he would not appear for his deposition, the Magistrate Judge warned petitioner that such refusal would result in dismissal of the action. (R.A.9-16.) Moreover, prior to issuing the Recommendation For Dismissal, the Magistrate Judge considered the possibility of lesser sanctions. (R.A.15.) However, because lesser sanctions had been attempted in the past and had proven ineffective, the Magistrate Judge concluded that dismissal was the appropriate sanction. (R.A.15.)

Petitioner's allegations that the Magistrate Judge and the District Court Judge were "racially biased" is nothing more than an attempt to find a cognizable basis for this Court to review the decisions below. Petitioner should not be allowed to manipulate the judicial process in this manner.

---

[2] The most egregious examples of petitioner's behavior are set forth in detail in the Magistrate Judge's Recommendation For Dismissal and will only be summarized here. (See R.A.9-21.)

The disingenuous nature of petitioner's allegations of racial bias is readily apparent from petitioner's own submission to this Court. On page 4 of petitioner's brief as well as on page 8 of the appendix to petitioner's brief, the Magistrate Judge's advice to petitioner is presented in its complete form. (Petition 4, A8.) When viewed in context, it is clear that the Magistrate Judge made the statements that petitioner now relies on to advance his theory of "racial bias" while advising petitioner that his failure to obtain counsel and a technical expert to assist him in this complicated patent infringement suit would severely prejudice petitioner. (See Petition 4, A8.) Petitioner's attempt to use the Magistrate Judge's well-intended advice as a pretext for claiming a civil rights violation is regrettable, but it is no excuse for the misconduct that led to the dismissal of this action.

II. The Court Of Appeals Has The Authority To Enter A Judgment Of Affirmance Without An Opinion

Petitioner assigns error to the Court of Appeals because it affirmed the District Court's dismissal without entering a written opinion. (See Petition 9.) Petitioner's argument implies that because the Court of Appeals did not issue an opinion petitioner's appeal did not receive the proper consideration and review. This contention is without merit.

The authority of courts of appeals to render judgments without opinion has been recognized by this Court. In Taylor v. McKeithen, 407 U.S. 191, 194 n.4 (1972), this Court acknowledged the importance of this authority, particularly with respect to summary affirmances:

> We, of course, agree that the courts of appeals should have wide latitude in their decision of whether or how to write opinions. This is especially true with respect to summary affirmances.

This authority is embodied in the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure -- the rules adopted by this Court to govern the practice and procedure of federal courts of appeals. These rules expressly contemplate that appeals may be decided without an opinion. Fed. R. App. P. 36.

A provision of similar import is contained in the local rules of ten of the thirteen courts of appeals. See, e.g., D.C. Cir. R. 36; 1st Cir. R. 36.1; 2d Cir. R. 0.23; 5th Cir. R. 47.6; 6th Cir. R. 19; 8th Cir. R. 47B; 9th Cir. R. 36-1; 10th Cir. R. 36.1; 11th Cir. R. 36-1; Fed. Cir. R. 36. Thus, the Federal Circuit is not alone in permitting such judgments of affirmance without opinion.

Judgments that are issued without opinion receive no less consideration than judgments that are issued with opinions. In this regard, the Federal Circuit has noted:

> Appeals whose judgments are entered under Rule 36 receive the full consideration of the court, and are no less carefully decided than the cases in which we issue full opinions. The Rule permits the court to dispense with issuing an opinion that would have no precedential value . . . .

United States Surgical Corp. v. Ethicon, Inc., 103 F.3d 1554, 1556 (Fed. Cir. 1997); see also Furman v. United States, 720 F.2d 263, 265 (2d Cir. 1983) ("The fact that a disposition is by informal summary order rather than by formal published opinion in no way indicates that less than adequate consideration has been given to the claims raised in the appeal."); United States v. Baynes, 548 F.2d 481, 483 (3d Cir. 1977) ("'[O]ur experience, bearing out that of appellate courts generally, is convincing that in a number of cases there is no real need for an opinion at all.'" (citation omitted)).

Since an affirmance by the Federal Circuit without opinion is completely proper, petitioner's assertions to the contrary must fail. Accordingly, this Court should deny the Petition.

CONCLUSION

Lew's Petition for Writ of Certiorari does not identify any valid basis for this Court to exercise its discretion and review the decisions below. Dismissal of this action was caused by nothing other than petitioner's obstruction of the discovery process. No litigant, pro se or otherwise, can expect to retain the right of access to the United States Courts if he is unwilling to comply with the Rules and Orders that govern these Courts. Consequently, Lew's Petition for Writ of Certiorari should be denied.

Respectfully submitted,

Date: June 2, 1997.

Jesse J. Jenner
FISH & NEAVE
1251 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10020
Telephone: (212) 596-9000

Counsel of Record
for Respondent
Rosemount Inc.

OF COUNSEL:

Denise L. Loring
Jeanne C. Curtis
FISH & NEAVE
1251 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10020
Telephone: (212) 596-9000

William E. Murane
HOLLAND & HART
Suite 2700
555 Seventeenth Street
Denver, Colorado 80202-3979
(303) 295-8000

APPENDIX

APPENDIX TABLE OF CONTENTS

PAGE

Judgment Of Affirmance By The Court Of Appeals For The Federal Circuit Dated: February 10, 1997..... R.A. 1

Order Of Dismissal By The United States District Court For The District Of Colorado Dated: April 17, 1996..... R.A. 5

Recommendation For Dismissal By The United States District Court For The District Of Colorado Dated: March 11, 1996..... R.A. 9

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT

NOTICE OF ENTRY OF JUDGMENT WITHOUT OPINION

JUDGMENT ENTERED: 02/10/97

The judgment of the court in your case was entered today pursuant to Rule 36. This Court affirmed the judgment or decision that was appealed. None of the relief sought in the appeal was granted. No opinion accompanied the judgment. The mandate will be issued in due course.

Information is also provided about petitions for rehearing and suggestions for rehearing in banc. The questions and answers are those frequently asked and answered by the Clerk's Office.

Costs are taxed against the Appellant(s) in favor of the Appellee(s) under Rule 39. The party entitled to costs is provided a bill of costs form and an instruction sheet with this notice.

The parties are encouraged to stipulate to the costs. A bill of costs will be presumed correct in the absence of a timely filed objection.

Costs are payable to the party awarded its costs. If costs are awarded to the government, they should be paid to the Treasurer of the United States. Where costs are awarded against the government, payment should be made to the person(s) designated under the governing statutes, the court's orders, and the parties' written settlement agreements. In cases between private parties, payment should be made to counsel for the party awarded costs or, if the party is not represented by counsel, to the party pro se. Payment of costs should not be sent to the court. Costs should be paid promptly.

Exhibits and visual aids shall be promptly retrieved by the party that lodged them with this court.

JAN HORBALY

Clerk

cc: HYOK S. LEW

JESSE J. JENNER

LEW V ROSEMOUNT INC, 97-1030
DCT CO - 96-1223 & 96-1257

NOTE: Pursuant to Fed. Cir. R. 47.6, this disposition is not citable as precedent. It is a public record. The disposition will appear in tables published periodically.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT

97-1030

HYOK S. LEW,

Plaintiff-Appellant,

v.

ROSEMOUNT, INC.,

Defendant-Appellee.

JUDGMENT

ON APPEAL from the UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT DISTRICT OF COLORADO

In CASE NO(S). 96-1223 & 96-1257

This CAUSE having been heard and considered, it is ORDER and ADJUDGED:

Per Curiam: (MAYER, PLAGER, and RADER, Circuit Judges):

AFFIRMED. See Fed. Cir. R. 36.

R.A. 4

ENTERED BY ORDER OF THE COURT

DATED FEB 10 1997

/s/ JAN HORBALY
Jan Horbaly, Clerk

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO
LEWIS T. BABCOCK, JUDGE

Civil Case No. 95-B-200

HYOK S. LEW, an individual,

Plaintiff,

v.

ROSEMOUNT, INC., a Minnesota corporation,

Defendant.

ORDER

This case is before me upon the following: 1) Magistrate Judge O. Edward Schlatter's March 11, 1996 recommendation that this action be dismissed with prejudice; 2) defendant's motion to dismiss upon the basis stated by the magistrate judge in his recommendation; 3) plaintiff's objection to the magistrate judge's recommendation; 4) "Plaintiff's Response Objecting to Rosemount Inc.'s Motion To Dismiss, Plaintiff's Motion Requesting Voluntary Withdrawal Of Magistrate O. Edward Schlatter From The Lawsuit, And Plaintiff's Motion To Sanction Defendant For Harassing Plaintiff By Means Of Criminal Acts"; 5) Defendant's opposition to motion to stay the order of March 1, 1996 and motion to strike; and 6) "Plaintiff's Objection To Rosemount's Motion To Strike Lew's Motion To Stay The Order Of March 1, 1996 And Plaintiff's Motion To Have Hearing And To Report Crimes Committed By Defendant And Its Counsels To The Criminal Division Of U.S. Attorney's Office And The Office Of FBI."

The magistrate judge has recommended dismissal of this action for plaintiff's refusal to cooperate in discovery. He cites as examples, plaintiff's refusal to appear at his deposition, plaintiff's refusal to agree to an English translation of a prior art Japanese patent, the content of which contains all the revisions that plaintiff previously requested, plaintiff's obstruction of service of a subpoena upon a third party, and continued inclusion of scandalous and impertinent matter in papers filed with the court despite explicit warnings that plaintiff refrain from such conduct. The magistrate judge found in his recommendation that plaintiff's conduct caused defendant to suffer unnecessary expense, delay, and constituted abuse beyond the limits any litigant should be expected to bear.

I have reviewed the magistrate judge's recommendation de novo. My de novo review of the record in this case reflects that the magistrate judge's comprehensive and thorough recommendation is clearly supported by the record. Indeed, the prolix pleadings filed by plaintiff following the issuance of the magistrate judge's recommendation are replete with continued scandalous and impertinent matter wholly beyond the bounds of any reasonable judicial tolerance. I conclude from my review of the record that plaintiff's continuous obstreperous and impertinent conduct constitutes unconscionable abuse of the judicial process which requires no less than the sanction of dismissal of this action with prejudice. I further conclude that plaintiff's allegations of improper, unethical, and criminal conduct on the part of defense counsel and the magistrate judge are baseless. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that the recommendation of the magistrate judge is approved, defendant's motion to dismiss is GRANTED, and the above action is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that "Plaintiff's Objection To Rosemount's Motion To Strike Lew's Motion To Stay The Order Of March 1, 1996 And Plaintiff's Motion To Have

Hearing And To Report Crimes Committed By Defendant And Its Counsels To The Criminal Division Of U.S. Attorney's Office And The Office Of FBI" is STRICKEN as scandalous and impertinent.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff's motion for withdrawal of the magistrate judge is DENIED.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the remaining pending motions are DENIED as moot.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the defendant shall have its costs in this action.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that any further abuse of the judicial process by the plaintiff as has been repeatedly demonstrated throughout the course of this action while appearing pro se shall subject the plaintiff to further sanctions, including but not limited to, additional costs and/or attorney fees incurred as a result, and the entry of an order barring plaintiff from filing any pleadings in a pro se capacity rather than through an attorney of record appearing on his behalf.

BY THE COURT:

/s/ LEWIS T. BABCOCK
Lewis T. Babcock, Judge

DATED: April 17, 1996

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO

Civil Case No. 95-B-200

CERTIFICATE OF MAILING

I certify that a copy of order was mailed to the following on April 18, 1996.

Hyok S. Lew
7890 Oak Street
Arvada, CO 80005

William E. Murane, Esq.
Michael Noone, Esq.
Holland & Hart
D.C. Box No. 6

Jesse J. Jenner, Esq.
Denise L. Loring, Esq.
John C. Vetter, Esq.
Fish & Neave
1251 Avenue of the Americas
New York, NY 10020

Magistrate Judge O. Edward Schlatter

/s/ N. HATCHER
Deputy Clerk

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO

Civil Action Number: 95-B-200

HYOK S. LEW,

Plaintiff,

vs.

ROSEMOUNT, INC.,

Defendant(s).

RECOMMENDATION

RECOMMENDATION ENTERED BY MAGISTRATE JUDGE O. EDWARD SCHLATTER

Shawn Schroeder, Secretary

This is a patent infringement case. Plaintiff (plaintiff or Dr. Lew) is suing defendant, Rosemount, Inc., in order to establish that defendant is marketing an item which violates a patent on a device which he invented. Plaintiff was originally represented by George G. Matava of Sheridan Ross & McIntosh, P.C. That firm was granted leave to withdraw on July 31, 1995, and plaintiff has been representing himself since that date.

Plaintiff has engaged in conduct which prompts me to recommend that his case be dismissed. Plaintiff stated to me during a recorded telephone conference that he would not appear for a deposition to which he had been noticed by defense counsel. He persisted in his refusal in spite of warnings from me that I would recommend that his case be dismissed.

I am well aware that lesser sanctions should be considered before the extreme remedy of dismissal is ordered. I have also given due consideration to the fact that plaintiff appears without counsel.

I

The incident which precipitated this recommendation occurred on March 1, 1996. Pursuant to a request from defendant, I conducted a telephone conference on that date with plaintiff and several attorneys for defendant, of whom Jesse Jenner, Esq., was the principal speaker. The telephone conference was recorded by electronic tape recording.

Defense counsel advised me during the conference that plaintiff was noticed in for deposition to be conducted in my chambers on March 5, 1996. The deposition was to be conducted in my chambers because of the lack of cooperation from plaintiff which defense counsel had encountered on numerous occasions. Counsel wished to have my guidance on plaintiff's stated intent to ignore the notice of deposition. They did not wish to suffer the costs which would be incurred for several attorneys to travel to Denver from out-of-state only to have plaintiff not appear.

In a letter of February 22, 1996, mailed to John Vetter of Fish & Neave, one of the attorneys for defendant, plaintiff wrote:

> Secondly, I am objecting to the notion of Ms. Denise L. Loring [another attorney for defendant] about taking deposition of me (Hyok S. Lew) on March 05, 1996, and I will not make myself available to such a deposition in view that, firstly, Rosemount has defaulted its right to take deposition of me by intentionally and willfully elapsing the Discovery Deadline of February 02, 1996, and secondly, Rosemount's scheme to take deposition of me after the Discovery Deadline of February 02, > 1996[,] has NO CAUSE other than Rosemount's counsels' malpractice to harass and torment Dr. Lew. The issue of Extension of Discovery Deadline will be taken all the way to U.S. Court of Appeals for Tenth Circuit if necessary, because I believe firmly that the Court of Appeals is the only judicial authority that will provide a lawful and logical ruling on the issue.

(Letter of Yew to Vetter, attached to defendant's Motion for Telephone Conference, filed February 27, 1996.)

The "discovery deadline" issue which concerned plaintiff, and which he apparently intends to appeal, arose during a telephone conference which was conducted before me, on the record, on January 24, 1996. During that hearing, defense counsel pointed out that discovery had been delayed because plaintiff had not provided to counsel the materials which were necessary for counsel to conduct a deposition of plaintiff, and because plaintiff had, at one point, attempted to conduct an appeal of this case to the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals. I found that good grounds existed to extend the discovery deadline from February 2, 1996, to March 15, 1996, approximately 45 days, and it was so ordered. (Transcript of Hearing, p. 15, and Order of March 1, 1996.)

English is not plaintiff's native language, and it is extremely difficult to understand him. A transcript of the telephone conference which was conducted on January 24, 1996, reflects that the transcriber understood less than one-third of plaintiff's remarks. The remainder of his comments were reflected in such notations as "inaudible words" or "indistinguishable paragraph." I have advised plaintiff during previous proceedings that he should obtain the assistance of an attorney to represent him, and that he was hurting his own case by virtue of the fact that others could not fully understand him. Plaintiff has ignored that advice.

During the telephone conference of March 1st, I expressly asked plaintiff whether he intended to absent himself from the deposition to which he had been noticed. Although I have commented that it is difficult to understand plaintiff, it was not difficult to understand him to state, firmly and unalterably, that he would not appear for any deposition by defendant. I advised plaintiff that I would find that he was not cooperating with the litigation and the discovery process, and I warned him that I would recommend to District Judge Lewis T. Babcock that his case be dismissed as a sanction. Having been warned that a recommendation for dismissal would be the consequence of his refusal to attend his deposition, plaintiff continued to assert, unequivocally, that defendant had no right to take his deposition, and he stated that he would not appear in response to the notice.

I noted for plaintiff that a deposition of him would be extremely routine, and that it is virtually always necessary. The necessity of plaintiff's deposition in this case is heightened by the fact that not only is Dr. Lew the plaintiff in this matter, he is also the only expert he intends to endorse.

The likelihood that my extension of the discovery deadline from February 2, 1996, to March 15, 1996, will be overturned by Judge Babcock or the Court of Appeals is so remote that plaintiffs refusal to be deposed until after he has appealed my order borders on the absurd. The trial is currently scheduled for December 2, 1996. Adjustment of the discovery deadline is clearly within my discretion as a Magistrate Judge, and even if my extension of the discovery deadline were reversed, it is still within my discretion to allow a deposition of plaintiff after any expiration of the deadline. In other words, plaintiff can have no hope of any success on an appeal, and, at any rate, he would face a deposition at the conclusion of any appeal.

Ordinarily, I would issue an order to plaintiff to show cause as to why a recommendation should not be submitted to Judge Babcock that his case be dismissed. In these circumstances, such a show cause order would be futile. Plaintiff was provided with the opportunities of a show cause hearing during the telephone conference.

The facts in this case are very similar to those which were presented to the trial court in Ehrenhaus v. Reynolds, 965 F.2d 916 (10th Cir. 1992). The District Judge in Ehrenhaus ordered a case dismissed upon a finding that plaintiff had willfully violated the court's order to appear at a deposition. Id. at 919. The Circuit Court affirmed the order of dismissal, and described the manner in which the trial court should proceed in weighing dismissal as a sanction.

> [A] court should ordinarily consider a number of factors, including: "(1) the degree of actual prejudice to the defendant; (2) the amount of interference with the judicial process; . . . (3) the culpability of the litigant" [citations omitted]; (4) whether the court warned the party in advance that dismissal of the action would be a likely sanction for noncompliance. . . . "Only when the aggravating factors outweigh the judicial system's strong predisposition to resolve cases on their merits is dismissal an appropriate sanction." [Citation omitted.]

Id. at 921. Finally, the Circuit Court noted that judge's should consider the efficacy of imposing lesser sanctions. Id.

I have considered the Eherenhaus factors, and make the following findings:

1. Degree of Prejudice. This case is an extremely expensive lawsuit for defendant. Plaintiff has elected to minimize his expenses by permitting the withdrawal of his attorney, and by proceeding with no attorney. He has further minimized his expenses by refusing to hire an independent expert, and by insisting that he will be his own expert in the case. Defendant, on the other hand, has significant legal expenses for the team of lawyers who are assigned to this case, and for the experts who have been retained to assist in the case.

Plaintiff's refusal to be deposed has caused undue delay and expense to defendant. Plaintiff has interrupted this case once before with a futile attempt to have the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals correct what he perceives to be errors or mistakes, and he is now threatening to do so again. His claim that an extension of the discovery deadline is so erroneous that he need not submit to deposition is completely unreasonable.

2. Interference With the Judicial Process. The Tenth Circuit held in Ehrenhaus, "When he wilfully failed to comply with a direct court order, Ehrenhaus flouted the court's authority." Id. at 921. The Circuit court approved the order of Judge Daniel B. Sparr where he stated, " 'If this debtor could ignore court orders here without suffering the consequences, then (the district c)ourt cannot administer orderly justice, and the result would be chaos.' " Id. Identical circumstances exist here. Plaintiffs remarks during the March 1st hearing reflect that he obeys only court orders with which he agrees.

3. Culpability of the Litigant. Plaintiff wilfully and intentionally refused to comply with the notice to appear for deposition in the very face of my admonition that I would recommend dismissal of his case if he persisted in his refusal. Plaintiff is entitled to a certain amount of deference in light of the facts that he is proceeding pro se, and he has a less-than-fluent command of the English language. However, plaintiff is a highly-educated scientist with a Ph.D. in a technical, scientific field. He holds a patent for a flow meter device, his patent is the subject of this litigation and he has selected himself as his expert. The written documents which he has submitted to the court in this case, prepared by himself, reflect that he has an excellent understanding of the English language. He has never stated that he does not understand what is being said to him by the court. Rather, his response to comments or directions reflects that he does not agree with the court, and will file appeals until he finds a court which does.

4. Notice or Warning. Plaintiff was expressly warned that his refusal to appear for deposition would result in a recommendation for dismissal. Plaintiff made no excuses for his refusal. As noted, he simply insists upon his right to defy the courts when he believes himself to be correct.

5. Efficacy of Lesser Sanctions. Lesser sanctions have been attempted, and were ineffective. During the telephone conference of January 24, 1996, defense counsel asked me to grant defendant's Motion to Strike, filed January 2, 1996, in which counsel outlined all of the scandalous, abusive and insulting language which plaintiff persists in using in all of his pleadings. Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(f); Biggs v. Cummins, 16 Ill.2d 424, 425, 258 N.E.2d 58, 59 (1959); In re Moody, 105 B.R. 368, 370-71 (S.D.Tex. 1989). As examples, counsel listed such accusations against counsel and the court by plaintiff as "felonious crime," "mail fraud," "alter[ing] and doctor[ing]" documents, "blatant lie" and "perjury." Plaintiff referred to counsel as a "stupid moron," and accused me of "aiding and abetting the felonious criminal acts of the defense counsels." The examples would fill pages. Virtually all of plaintiff's pleadings are filled with a continuous flow of invective, insult and abuse.

I denied defendant's Motion to Strike plaintiff's pleadings. However, I warned plaintiff in the sternest of language that if he persisted in using such terms in the future, I would strike any pleading in which the terms or phrases appear. ((Transcript of Hearing, January 24, 1996, p. 20.) Despite this warning, plaintiff has refused or declined to alter his language. All of the pleadings filed by plaintiff after the telephone conference of January 24, 1996, reflect that the flow of insult and abuse continues. Plaintiff has not diminished the use of scandalous invective in the slightest. It is clear that warnings that his pleadings will be stricken have no effect upon him.

II

Plaintiff's refusal to attend his deposition is sufficient, in itself, to support my recommendation that his case be dismissed. However, plaintiff has engaged in other activities which have greatly increased the expenses and burdens of defendant in this litigation. These activities further justify the extreme sanction of dismissal.

A

Defense counsel attempted over a period of several months to obtain from plaintiff a stipulation with regard to the translation of a document from Japanese to English. A stipulation was considered desirable by defense counsel in order to eliminate future battles over the accuracy of the document as translated.

At least as early as October 13, 1996, during a telephone conference, plaintiff expressed objections to the translation which had been obtained by defendant. Plaintiff was ordered by me on October 23, 1995, to provide defendant with a translation which he believed to be more accurate. On October 27, 1995, plaintiff filed a document in which he objects to my order. (Plaintiff's Objection to Magistrate's Order of October 23, 1995.) Because a stipulation with regard to the accuracy of a translation is a desirable goal, it is impossible to understand why plaintiff would object, as he does, to my directions that he provide defendant with his translation of the document, or his version of any disputed phrases. Plaintiff even considers my order that he use overnight mail to be an abridgement of his freedom of expression, and a violation of his "unalienable [sic] right to choose means for sending the documents." Id. at 6.

In December, 1995, and January, 1996, plaintiff and defense counsel exchanged letters with regard to this dispute. The letters and documents are attached to defendant's January 22, 1996, "Submission for the January 24, 1996, Status Conference (Submission) The letters from plaintiff again reflect the vituperation and invective which characterizes all of plaintiff's written materials. More importantly, the letters demonstrate that plaintiff had no good reason for refusing to enter into a stipulation with regard to the translation.

On December 1, 1995, Jesse Jenner, counsel for defendant, wrote to plaintiff indicating a willingness on defendant's part to accept plaintiff's translation to the only two phrases which were disputed by plaintiff. (Submission, Exhibit 1.) By return mail of December 8, 1995, plaintiff continued to rail about the lack of honesty of defense counsel, and refused to agree to any stipulation. (Submission, Exhibit 2.) In a letter of December 27, 1995, plaintiff describes defendant's efforts to obtain a stipulation as "a ruse to cheat and deceive" plaintiff. (Submission, Exhibit 4.)

By the time of the telephone conference of January 24, 1996, plaintiff still refused to enter into a stipulation with regard to the accuracy of a translation. I ended the dispute by ordering that his versions of the two disputed phrases be adopted and inserted, and by ordering that as so amended the translation would be considered accurate and official.

Plaintiff offers emotional grounds for refusing to stipulate to a translation, but he offers no legitimate reasons for his refusal. It is clear that a great deal of time was spent by defense counsel in a needless and senseless exercise. In the circumstances of this case, it is unfair to require defendant to be burdened with the undue costs and expenses which are created by plaintiff's irresponsible behavior.

B

During the telephone conference of January 24, 1996, defense counsel pointed out that they had been attempting to serve a subpoena upon any of the officers of a business called "Rete" corporation ("Redtay" in the transcript), and that plaintiff was deliberately obstructing efforts at service. Counsel indicated that this corporation was apparently owned or operated by immediate members of plaintiff's family, such as his wife and sons, and that the operations of this business were related to the patent issues in this lawsuit. Counsel stated that when at least two efforts were made to serve a subpoena at plaintiff's residence, where the members of the family lived, "the door was closed in his face." (Transcript of Hearing, January 24, 1996, p. 7.)

Plaintiff admitted that Rete corporation was a family-owned business, admitted that the entire family lived at his residence and admitted that the process server was sent away each time he attempted service. Id. at 7-8. When asked by me whether someone would now accept service, plaintiff answered, "No," because "I hold my house is a respectable [sic], it's not for police...." Id. at 6. Further remarks by plaintiff during the telephone conference appeared to indicate that he and the family would not cooperate with defendant's efforts to serve a subpoena. I resolved the dispute by declaring that service could be accomplished by posting or taping the subpoena to the door of the residence. Id. at 12.

Plaintiff can have no reasonable justification for his refusal to cooperate, and none was offered by him during the telephone conference. Plaintiff's refusal to cooperate with service is one more example of actions by plaintiff which cause defendant to suffer exceptional costs and burdens.

III

The sanction of dismissal is justified in this case. Fed.R.Civ.P. 37(b)(2)(C) and 41(b). The Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals has affirmed the dismissal of cases for conduct by plaintiffs which was similar to that of plaintiff in this present case. Jones v. Thompson, 996 F.2d 261, 266 (10th Cir. 1993) ("The Plaintiffs repeatedly ignored court orders to submit themselves for depositions, to conclude discovery, and to come prepared to pretrial conferences."); Bud Brooks Trucking, Inc. v. Bill Hodges Trucking Co., 909 F.2d 1437 (10th Cir. 1990) (dismissal appropriate for failure to comply with scheduling and discovery deadlines); In re Standard Metals Corp., 817 F.2d 625, 629 (10th Cir. 1987) (failure to appear at deposition warranted dismissal); Mertsching v. United States, 704 F.2d 505, 506 (10th Cir. 1983)(failure to answer questions at a deposition warranted dismissal).

I therefore RECOMMEND that plaintiff's cause of action be DISMISSED with prejudice for his refusal to appear at his deposition, and for his conduct in causing "unnecessary delay or needless increase in the cost of litigation." Fed.R.Civ.P. 11 (b)(1). An advisement to Dr. Lew of his RIGHTS TO APPEAL from this order within ten days pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 72 is attached to this recommendation.

In the event District Judge Lewis T. Babcock declines to accept my recommendation for dismissal, I reserve the authority to impose such other sanctions as I consider appropriate for the discovery abuses by plaintiff which I have described in this recommendation, including the striking of pleadings, Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(f), and the imposition of fees and costs. 28 U.S.C. § 1927.

DATED at Denver, Colorado on: March 11, 1996

BY THE COURT:

/s/ O. EDWARD SCHLATTER

O. Edward Schlatter

United States Magistrate Judge

Copies of the foregoing Recommendation were duly mailed to the following:

Hyok S. Lew
7890 Oak Street
Arvada, CO 80005

William E. Murane, Esq.
Michael Noone, Esq.
Holland & Hart
DC Box 06

Jesse J. Jenner, Esq.
Denise L. Loring, Esq.
John C. Vetter, Esq.
Fish & Neave
1251 Avenue of the Americas
New York, NY 10020

DATED: March 11, 1996

/s/ SHAWN SCHRODER
Secretary to Magistrate Schlatter

ADVISEMENT UNDER FED. R CIV. P. 72

Be advised that all parties shall have ten (10) days after service hereof to serve and file any written objections in order to obtain reconsideration by the District Judge to whom this case is assigned. FED. R. CIV. P. 72. The party filing objections must specifically identify those findings or recommendations to which the objections are being made. The District Court need not consider frivolous, conclusive or general objections. A party's failure to file such written objections to proposed findings and recommendations contained in this report may bar the party from a de novo determination by the District Judge of the proposed findings and recommendations. United States v. Raddatz, 447 U.S. 667, 676-83 (1980); 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). Additionally, the failure to file written objections to the proposed findings and recommendations within ten (10) days after being served with a copy may bar the aggrieved party from appealing the factual findings of the Magistrate Judge that are accepted or adopted by the District Court. Thomas v. Arn, 474 U.S. 140, 155 (1985); Moore v. United States, 950 F.2d 656, 659 (10th Cir. 1991); Niehaus v. Kansas Bar Ass'n, 793 F.2d 1159, 1164 (10th Cir. 1986).

Supreme Court, U.S.
FILED
JUN 11 1997
OFFICE OF THE CLERK

(3)

No. 96-1747

In The
Supreme Court of the United States
October Term 1996

Hyok S. Lew,
Pro se Petitioner
v.

Rosemount, Inc.
Respondent

On Petition For Writ Of Certiorari
To The U.S. Court of Appeals For The Federal Circuit

REPLY TO BRIEF IN OPPOSITION

Hyok S. Lew
7890 Oak Street
Arvada, CO 80005
Tel.: (303) 420-2784

Pro se Petitioner

5 pp

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

The primary questions presented for review by the Supreme Court are the racially prejudiced attitudes and the extremely biased actions favoring the defendant and definitely hostile to the plaintiff, which have been adopted by the district judge and the magistrate judge who presided over the lawsuit in the United States District Court for the District of Colorado. Even though it is not the issue which warrants the attention of the Supreme Court, the fraud and misrepresentations perpetrated by the counsels for defendant during the proceedings of the lawsuit in the U.S. District Court should be looked into by the Supreme Court as a secondary question, because such fraud and misrepresentations played instrumental roles in turning the district judge and the magistrate judge against the plaintiff and in providing the fraudulent information which were used to author the fallacious grounds for the dismissal of the lawsuit with prejudice by the magistrate judge. In other words, the secondary question is directly related to the merit of the issues raised by the primary questions.

In view of the respondent's questions for review raised in the Brief In Opposition For Writ Of Certiorari, the petitioner would like to ask this Court to review the following questions:

1. Does it not constitute a cognizable question by the Supreme Court that the district judge and the magistrate judge had acted in a racially prejudiced and ultimately inequitable manner against the petitioner-plaintiff during the lawsuit?

2. Does it not constitute an offense punishable by law to lie before this Court and other courts by the counsels for defendant?

3. Is it not possible that there could have been an inadvertent oversight in the Court of Appeals?

FALSE STATEMENT OF THE CASE BY RESPONDENT

In the Petitioner Hyok S. Lew's Petition For Writ of Certiorari, the petitioner-plaintiff has presented the reasons why this Court should exercise its discretion and review the United States District Court's decision, e.g.,

1. It is unconstitutional to racially discriminate and mistreat the petitioner-plaintiff in the lawsuit by the district judge and the magistrate judge.

2. It is unconstitutional to deprive the petitioner-plaintiff's civil right to receive a fair trial, as the district judge and the magistrate judge had condoned and abetted fraud and misrepresentations by the counsels for defendant in the lawsuit, and had dismissed the lawsuit with prejudice based on the fallacious grounds fictitiously authored by the magistrate judge by relying solely on the fraudulent information and materials provided by the counsels for defendant.

3. It is unconstitutional to deprive the petitioner-plaintiff's right to speak out truthfully about the events pertinent to the lawsuit by the district judge and the magistrate judge by means of intimidation and threats.

4. It is unconstitutional to deny due process to the petitioner-plaintiff by the district judge and the magistrate judge, who had refused even to make a single ruling on any of the plaintiff's motions numbering at least twenty (20), while instantly and automatically granting numerous defendant's motions numbering at least twenty (20).

The respondent's description of the case is replete with lies, which are tantamount to willful false statements punishable by law. (1) Contrary to the respondent's allegations, the plaintiff had not refused to comply with even a single Court Order, as the Court had failed to enter and issue the specific Court Orders, or the plaintiff had appealed the unlawful Court Orders to the Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit. Please, let the district court or the counsels for defendant cite a court order or orders, which the plaintiff refused to comply with. They cannot because the respondent's allegation amounts to nothing more than blatant lies. (2) Contrary to the respondent's allegation, the plaintiff never "firmly and unalterably" refused to appear for his deposition. The counsels for defendant had never notified the plaintiff as to his deposition in a formal and legitimate manner. The counsels for defendant and the magistrate judge colluded to trick the plaintiff in their attempt to take deposition of the plaintiff without notifying the plaintiff in a legitimate manner. (3) Contrary to the respondent's allegation, the plaintiff never obstructed the defendant's effort to serve a third party subpoena. Firstly, the third party was not a family-run corporation and the plaintiff's wife was never a member of this third party. Secondly, the plaintiff was never related to the third party and had never obstructed the defendant's effort to serve the subpoena to the third party. This Court's attention must be called to this brazen act of this willful false statement by the counsels for defendant that is punishable by law. (4) It is the right of the petitioner not to accept the stipulation to the translation, as the counsels for defendant wanted to make it "the translation" while the plaintiff wanted to make it "a translation". Above all, the issue of the translation was pending under a motion filed by the plaintiff that was pending for at least six (6) months and yet, the district judge was willfully avoiding and refusing to make a ruling on the motion. This so called refusal to accept the stipulation is another lie fabricated by the counsels for defendant and the magistrate judge under mutual collusion. (5) It is a false accusation by the counsels for defendant and the court that the plaintiff hurled invective accusations at the counsels for defendant. The plaintiff spoke out against the lies and misrepresentations made by the counsels for defendant, which fact and truth is proven by the records of the lawsuit. The racially prejudiced and ultimately biased district judge and the magistrate judge were adversely influenced by the lies and the fallacious pleadings filed by the counsels for defendant, and consequently, accused the plaintiff for speaking out the truth as to the unlawful acts committed by the counsels for defendant. (6) It is the defense counsels' false statement that "prior to dismissal, Magistrate Judge issued numerous warnings to petitioner, but no avail". The magistrate judge warned only once that he will recommend the dismissal of the lawsuit if the plaintiff does not comply with his order as to the deposition of the plaintiff by the defendant. However, the magistrate judge forgot to issue any order as to the plaintiff's deposition by the counsels for defendant and then, attempted to cover up his forgetfulness or mistake by recommending the dismissal of the lawsuit with prejudice that the district judge blindly accepted without knowing all of the pertinent facts and truth.

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITION

1. The racially prejudiced and extremely biased acts and manners of the district judge and the magistrate judge directed against the petitioner-plaintiff is "departure from the accepted and usual course of judicial proceedings" and consequently, the petition should be granted.

2. It is an outrageous act absolutely unbecoming of a judicial officer to accuse the petitioner-plaintiff's decision to become a pro se plaintiff by the magistrate judge who stated "terribly, terribly foolish decision on your (plaintiff's) part", for the alternative was abandoning the lawsuit or heading straight to bankruptcy under the burden of attorney's fee. As a matter of fact, the counsels for defendant tried very hard to force the petitioner-plaintiff to retain one or more counsels for the plaintiff as well as a paid expert or experts. The petitioner-plaintiff has to often wonder whether the magistrate judge was so angry at the petitioner-plaintiff because the petitioner-plaintiff had insisted to become a pro se plaintiff as he had no other alternative, and because the magistrate judge was unable to help the counsel for defense to fulfill their wish as to forcing the petitioner-plaintiff to hire counsels.

3. The petitioner-plaintiff believes that it is within the province of the Court of Appeals to issue a judgment of affirmance without opinion. The petitioner-plaintiff is not disputing the judgment of affirmance without opinion by the Court of Appeals. The petitioner-plaintiff is merely asking this Court to review the PETITION for the sake of justice.

CONCLUSION

The argument by the respondent being fallacious and nonfactual, the PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI should be granted.

Date: June 10 , 1997 Respectfully submitted,

By: Hyok Sang Lew

Hyok S. Lew, Pro se Plaintiff
7890 Oak Street
Arvada, CO 80005
Tel.: (303) 420-2784

Petitioner